Sometimes no money equals no lunch, but not here

news@thenewsleaders.com

No one likes to think of a child going hungry or being shamed for not having money in his or her lunch account. Unfortunately, that's the public concern in some school districts, as seen in recent headlines across the United States and even within our own state. But thankfully, in the central Minnesota school districts of Sartell- St. Stephen (District 748) and St. Cloud-St. Joseph (District 742), children and families need not fear such treatment.

St. Joseph Kennedy Elementary Principal Laurie Putnam said the district has a rule that no child will go hungry regardless of the lunch-account balance.

"We don't withhold food," Putnam said. "They are given the same food as everyone else, and we don't use any shaming practices."

Shaming practices in some schools may include children sent to the principal's office if their lunch account is zero or negative, food taken from the child and thrown in the garbage, a stamp on the hand or singling them out in the lunch line in front of other students.

Taking a more positive and pro-active approach, both District 748 and 742, notify families once they are below a certain amount in their lunch accounts. Parents can choose a text alert, phone call, email or all of the above, and have the option to refill the account on-

Brenda Braulick, food service director for District 748, said it's an easy thing to do - to forget to put money into the account, especially for those families with more than one child in the district.

After a negative balance and the resultant phone calls, both districts send letters home. But both emphasize they encourage those families consistently with a negative balance to apply for the free or reduced-cost lunch program through the state to ease the financial burden. They are also encouraged to

Name added to 'likely abusers' list

by Dennis Dalman

The name of another priest has been added to a list of about 40 area Catholic clergy "likely to have abused minors," according to a recent announcement from Bishop Donald Kettler, head of the Catholic Diocese of St.

The priest is Fr. Antonio Marfori, who was ordained in 1978 at St. Mary's Cathedral in St. Cloud. Marfori has had two complaints against him. The first was filed in 2015, the second in 2016. Both complaints allege Marfori sexually abused minors in the late 1970s, the first against a minor while he was a part-time instructor at Cathedral High School, the second against a minor when he was a full-time instructor at that high school. Kettler ordered an investigation into the allegations after the first complaint was filed in 2015. Marfori was at Cathedral from 1978-80, first as a part-time instructor, later as an instructor and assistant chaplain.

Marfori has served in various places throughout the years, including St. Francis Xavier Parish in Sartell right after his ordination where he was a part-time instructor and later a full-time instructor and assistant chap-

- Pastor at St. Agnes's in Roscoe, 1985-93.
- Pastor at St. Margaret's in Lake Henry (while continuing at ment/how-to-report-abuse.

Financial Peace University classes to begin Jan. 23 manage your money as a great

news@thenewsleaders.com

The start of a new year is often a time when people try to set and achieve new goals such as spending down or getting out of debt.

A Financial Peace University class will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 23 at St. Francis Xavier Church in Sartell and will continue for nine weeks.

Instructors Alison and Joel Dahlin said Financial Peace University is a plan to get out of debt, save for the future and team with your spouse.

The couple became debt-free in 2016. They said they had a good income, but still felt stressed when it came to money.

"It felt like we were living paycheck to paycheck and never getting ahead," Joel said.

He heard Dave Ramsey, a financial expert and author, speak on the radio and ordered his book The Total Money Makeover.

He and Alison both read the book and found a simple and easy plan to follow that got them Peace • back page

Builders association donates funds to area high school tech programs

Central Minnesota Builders Association has seen an amplified level of interest by technology instructors to participate in Tools for Schools, an educational project developed in 2004 by the CMBA to increase the skills of students and promote the benefits of working in the building industry as a career.

This year 17 area schools including Sartell, Sauk Rapids, Cathedral, St. Cloud's Apollo and Tech, Albany, ALC McKinley, Becker, Eden Valley-Watkins, Folev, Kimball, Little Falls, Melrose, Princeton, Rocori, Swanville, and Upsala submitted requests indicting their schools were underfunded and could use some more tools for the interested students. The schools were presented $18,000 at a recent CMBA meeting, giving the passionate and grateful instructor's a platform to share their trials and successes in each program with CMBA members. They told stories of students learning building trade skills and showed appreciation for the chance to teach with more and safer tools. In addition to the presentation of donation checks, a Tool Drive was held to fill a shortage of simple tools. Donations of tools and money will be matched in 2017 up to $20,000 thanks to a newly formed CMBA Tools for Schools Presidents Foundation.

Binder, Trombley selected for Honor Choir Lunch

by Cori Hilsger

news@thenewsleaders.com

St. John's Prep School ninthgrade students Dolan Binder and Carter Trombley are vocalists who were recently chosen by the American Choral Directors Association of Minnesota Honor Choir to participate in the State 9-10 Boys' Honor Choir

This is the third year Trombley has been selected and the second year Binder has been chosen for the honor that recognizes outstanding young Minnesota choral musicians. Both boys have been members of the St. John's Boys' Choir since third grade.

Binder is the son of Annette and Harvey Binder. Annette said he has been singing with his family all of his life. His third-grade music teacher recommended he audition for the St. John's Boys' Choir.

Binder's choir journey began with that audition, and Annette said auditioning for the American Choral Directors Association of Minnesota Honor Choir seemed like a natural thing for him to do.

He auditioned last year as an eighth-grader and was accepted at that time.

"He thoroughly enjoyed that experience and was even asked to audition for one of the solo parts that year," Annette said. "Being accepted a second year is a great honor and Dolan is excited to work with and learn from new directors once again."

Binder has enjoyed his experience in choir and honor choir.

"It is a huge commitment, but he loves the opportunity to work with new conductors and to meet other choir members," Annette said. "He has made lifelong friendships, been able to travel to new places and is looking forward to expanding his choral knowledge and voice in the fothers."

Both parents said they are very proud of Binder and his musical accomplishments.

Although, he is not always comfortable getting up in front of people, Annette said, his choir experiences have been great confidence-builders

St. John's Prep ninth-graders Dolan Binder (left), son of Annette and Harvey of Sartell, and Carter Trombley, son of Lisa and Greg of Sartell, were recently named to the American Choral Directors Association of Minnesota Honor Choir to participate in the State 9-10 Boys' Honor Choir. This is Binder's second consecutive selection for the Honor Choir which recognizes outstanding young Minnesota choral musicians.

and a positive influence in his life. Through these experiences, he has grown as a musician and a person.

"We live in an area with so many wonderful musical opportunities for boys, and we feel so blessed Dolan has been able to be a part of many of them," Annette said.

Trombley is the son of Lisa and Greg Trombley of Sartell.

Binder and Trombley auditioned for the honor choir under the direction of St. John's Boys' Choir director Andrè Heywood.

The ACDA-MN organizes six honor choir projects each year to feature outstanding student talent at a variety of levels, including State 4-5-6 Boys' and Girls,' State 7-8 Boys' and Girls,' State 9-10 Women's and State 9-10 Mixed. Each participant is required to memorize five pieces for the ACDA public performance.

Members of the St. John's Boys' Choir rehearse between four to 14 hours each week and perform at about 30 events each season.

Binder and Trombley were two of five boys selected for the Grade 9/10 Honor Choir. Jack Skahen of St. Joseph, Dean Rothstein of Cold Spring and Alexis Martinez Mejia of Annandale were also selected.

Both boys sing in the Nova Voce Young Men's Ensemble and are in their seventh season with the St. John's Boys' Choir.

They have traveled with the St. John's Boys' Choir to many states, Washington, D.C. and to Ireland. They plan to travel to Spain and "In addition to being excellent singers, all these boys are exceptional leaders in the St. John's Boys' Choir and in their school programs and, as such, are very deserving of this honor," Heywood said.

The ACDA-MN Boys' Honor Choir brings together about 120 of the state's best singers in that age range. Boys are chosen from more than hundreds of auditions across the state.

More than 2,400 students audition each year for placement into the honor choir program and about 830 students are selected.

Heywood has served as both a judge for the auditions and as a conductor of the Honor Choir.

Binder plays guitar and has played the French horn in the past. He is currently teaching himself to play piano and also sings in the Sartell High School Men's Chorus.

Binder has a twin sister, Christina, who is also musical and artistic. She loves to sing and pick on her brother.

Binder's grandparents, Blanche and Allan Tirk of Long Prairie, are some of his biggest fans in encouraging and cheering on his musical endeavors.

The Honor Choir will perform with the State 9-10 Girls' Honor Choir at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 22 at the Minneapolis Convention Center's Main Auditorium.

ddition to being excellent all these boys are excepable the same district hasn't received any.

Though the Sartell-St. Stephen School District hasn't received any "Christmas angels" help yet this year, Braulick said people are certainly welcome to call the Sartell District Office and ask about giving to the "Have a Heart Fund" that helps families in need within the district.

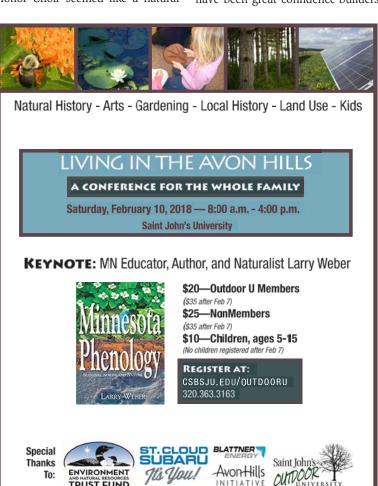

And with all the talk in other school districts regarding wasted food, especially when there are those who are forced to discard their meals for the inability to pay, local residents may wonder what local schools do with uneaten food. Well, both 748 and 742 said they work hard at not wasting their resources.

At Kennedy Elementary, Putnam said, anything packaged or a whole fruit is rewashed and redistributed (following all protocols for safety and cleanliness). Then whatever cannot be redistributed but is still safe for consumption is packed up for families in need within the school. All families are provided with the information to sign up for these free meals to bring home. She said they're very discreet and package them so the child can bring them home and no one knows.

At Sartell-St. Stephen schools, Braulick said several things happen to uneaten food. Any food waste not safe for human consumption, meaning it's open and touched or bitten into, is sent to Barthold Farms Inc. in St. Francis for hog feed. They are also trying another food recycling venture at the Sartell Middle School, where they save food waste for Tri-County Organics in St. Cloud for making compost. Anything throughout the week that is packaged food or something they can sanitize and re-use, gets redistributed. Then every Friday, Salvation Army picks up food items that are safe to eat for the people at the With so many negative stories

With so many negative stories out there about school-lunch programs, it can be overwhelming to think any of those things could happen in our backyard. But both school districts said they hope this sheds some light on what happens if children come to school with no money in their accounts and what happens to the food after they've had their fill so the focus can be on education.

Jack Frost temp doesn't deter Polar Run Club

by Vicki Ikeogu

news@thenewsleaders.com

It's a chilly December Saturday morning in Sartell.

The thermometer has dipped to around 18 degrees.

Fluffy snowflakes are slowly falling as the gentle breeze assists them on their descent to the frost-covered ground.

The air is crisp.

Most people would be cuddled under a blanket, enjoying a warm beverage and getting ready to plan their weekend. But for eight local women, Saturday mornings from mid-November to April are spent hitting the paved trails in and around Lion's Community Park in Sartell.

"It's all about being prepared," said Tami Huberty. "Hats, gloves, mittens, leggings. You have to dress in layers."

Now in its second year, the Polar Run Club is giving women the chance to continue developing their running stamina and endurance throughout the winter months.

"A lot of us enjoy running (outside) during the winter," Huberty said. "And we will be out there running unless it feels like the temperature gets down to zero."

Starting with an 8 a.m. stretching and warm-up session, the group of women sets out on the course, running and/or walking anywhere between three and 13 miles during the morning before gathering for coffee and camaraderie at a local coffee shop.

"We get out there and run and jut have a good time," Huberty

The Polar Run Club is an $85, 22-week running class offered by St. Cloud/Sartell Moms on the Run. Moms on the Run, founded in 2008 by Forest Lake resident Karissa Johnson, is an organization designed to help moms in particular get back into shape after having a baby.

Huberty started the local chapter in the spring of 2015.

"Moms on the Run is actually geared toward teaching women how to run," Huberty said. "We do have quite a few women who are new to running. But a lot of our members are training for

And with major races, including St. Cloud's Earth Day run starting as early as April, Huberty said winter is no time for these athletes to take a break.

"I think the biggest thing about this is people want to continue running," Huberty said. "And that's our goal."

Huberty chose to continue the Moms on the Run outdoor running throughout the winter for three reasons.

"Running indoors on a track is very monotonous," Huberty said. "And running on a treadmill really isn't a natural way of running. It's not very good for different muscle groups. Plus, it's more fun to be able to run with others."

Huberty said students in the Polar Run Club learn how to properly protect their bodies during the frigid temperatures.

"The main focus is on keeping the core warm," she said.

In addition, she said athletes

Pets can suffer from cold as much as people can

With recent brutal below-zero temperatures, we should all remind ourselves every day and night that pets get cold, too. In fact, like humans they can easily get frostbite or even freeze to death when temps dip dangerously low.

The problem of dogs suffering or dying in the cold has become of such concern that many states have now passed laws making it a crime to leave pets (including cats) outside in the freezing cold. Those states are Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Texas and the latest one - Pennsylvania. The laws vary widely, some more strict than others, but at least it's a start - the beginning of an awareness that cold (and hot) weather can be as tough on animals as people. Let us hope Minnesota and all the other cold northern states soon makes the list of states criminalizing pet abuse in winter.

In the meantime, let's all keep our pets warm

The following are good winter tips:

- Never let a dog or cat outside for more than 10 or 15 minutes when it's cold and windy. A potty break is fine, but make sure you do not forget the dog is outside.
- Do not let dogs stay alone in vehicles when it's cold. They can suffer and die just as they can if left alone in hot cars.
- Don't shave dogs in winter. Let their fur grow to keep them warm.
- Buy a dog sweater or vest to protect the dog from cold when taking it for a walk. Dog booties might also be an option.
- Keep strolls with your pets very short on the coldest days - just a couple blocks at the most.
- Use a towel to dry pets' paws when they come in the house after snowfall and after a walk and remove snowballs from fur.
- Be sure to use pet-friendly de-icers on driveways, car ports and sidewalks. They can be toxic to pets when stuck in their paws or fur. It's good to use pet-friendly de-icers even if you do not
- · Likewise, as above, car coolants and antifreeze are lethal to animals - a very real danger as pets often like to lick the "sweet-tasting" chemicals off of driveways, car ports or garage floors. Be sure to clean up spills and leaks immediately.
- Always make sure dogs have plenty of water, especially when outdoors, because water can rehydrate their systems, boost blood circulation and help them stay warmer.
- Be aware some cats will climb up onto the engines of parked cars in an effort to find warmth. Starting an engine can obviously kill the unfortunate creature so before starting a vehicle check for signs of a cat or cats on or near the
- It's important for dogs to get some exercise. It's fine to play "fetch" in the yard for brief periods of time on cold days. Brisk walks, with pets always on leashes, is also a good idea, but keep the walks quite short.

All it takes is a bit of awareness, following those tips, to keep our pets safe, warm and happy all winter long.

Mitch Hedberg said it best:

"I don't own a cell phone or a pager. I just hang around everyone I know. All the time. If someone wants to get a hold of me, they just say, 'Mitch,' and I say 'What?' as I turn my head slightly."

That had me laughing out loud for five minutes yesterday. I came across that quote in the online version of Editor and Publisher.

Who is Mitch Hedberg? Well, I didn't know either. I did some research and discovered he was a stand-up comedian known for his deadpan oneliners. I love deadpan humor. Too bad I missed him; I must have been watching all the wrong channels.

During my Hedberg research, I was laughing my head off. Here are some other gems:

- "I had an apartment and I had a neighbor, and whenever he would knock on my wall, I knew he wanted me to turn my music down, and that made me angry 'cause I like loud music . . . So when he knocked on the wall, I'd mess with his head. I'd sav. 'Go around! I cannot open the wall! I don't know if you have a door on your side, but over here there's nothin'. It's iust flat."
- "Rice is really great if you're really hungry and want to eat at least 2,000 of something."
- "I think Bigfoot is blurry. That's the problem. It's not the photographer's fault. Bigfoot is blurry and that's extra scary to me. There's a large, out-of-focus monster roaming the countryside. Run! He's fuzzy! Get out of here!"

Were Pringles supposed to be golf balls?

• "I used to do drugs. I still do, but I used to, too."

There was an awful truth lurking in that one-liner. The St. Paul-born Hedberg died of a drug overdose at the age of 37 on April 1, 2005. Many fans at first were sure at first it was an April Fool's joke - the kind of joke Hedberg would play.

Like many stand-up comics, he suffered from stage fright. Also, like so many comedians, he often wove dark observations into his comedic spiels. The great Carol Burnett once said "Comedy is tragedy - plus time."

Here are some more that had me laughing:

- "An escalator can never break. It only becomes stairs."
- "When I was a boy, I laid in my twin-size bed and wondered where my brother was."
- •"I had a parrot. The parrot talked, but it did not say, 'I'm hungry.' So it
- "If you're watchin' a parade, make sure you stand in one spot. Don't follow it; it never changes. And if the parade is boring, run in the opposite direction. You will fast-forward the

- "The Kit-Kat candy bar has the name 'Kit-Kat' imprinted into the chocolate. That robs you of chocolate. It is a clever chocolate-saving technique. I go down to the factory. 'You owe me some letters!' "
- "My fake plants died because I did not pretend to water them."
- "One time, this guy handed me a picture of him. He said, 'Here's a picture of me when I was younger.' Every picture is of you when you were younger. I said, 'Here's a picture of me when I'm older.' He said, 'You #$&&*! How'd you pull that off? Lemme see that camera. What's it look like?' "
- "I was walking down the street with my friend, and he said, 'I hear music' as if there is any other way you can take it in. I said, 'You're not special; that's how I receive it, too. I tried to taste it but it didn't work.'
- "I think Pringles' original intention was to make golf balls. But on the day the rubber was supposed to show up, a truckload of potatoes came. Pringles is a laid-back company so they said, 'Oh, well, cut 'em up.'
- I hope next time I move I get a real easy phone number, something real easy to remember. Something like 2, 2, 2, 2, 2 . . . And then people would say, 'Mitch, how do I get a hold of you?' And I'd say, 'Just press 2 for awhile and when I answer, you'll know you've pressed 2 enough.'

Hey, Mitch, wherever you are, sorry I missed you. Thanks for the laughs.

The Vikings' beautiful, lucky win

What just happened? That was the question that bounced around my mind after the end of the Minnesota Vikings' playoff game against the New Orleans Saints this past Sunday night. Down 24-23 with just seconds left, my family watched breathlessly as Stefon Diggs caught the last-second pass from Case Keenum and ran it into the end zone. Minnesota goes on to the NFC Championship.

Of course, the game didn't start out on quite the intense note it ended on. Looking at the matchup, I was fairly confident the Vikings could pull out a success. The team had been, despite a few hiccups, electric throughout the entire year. A 13-3 season coupled with standout talent like Keenum, Diggs and Adam Thielen had me more excited about Minnesota's playoff chances than since watching Brett Favre in

We had defeated the Saints earlier in the year in a close, but still convincing, victory. The Saints had a worse record and had barely managed to put away the Carolina Panthers in their first playoff game. Yet I still had the lingering dread in my mind. What if the Vikings mess things up? What if this was like 2009 when the Saints had beaten us when we were so close to the Super Bowl? I tried to push these thoughts back and just watch the game.

At first, things went smoothly. The Vikings came in with impressive offense and defense, shutting down Drew Brees and putting up 17 points on the scoreboard before the end of the first half. I was ecstatic. This could really be our year. Things seemed to be going right. The Vikings would continue their amazing run after all. But the first half is only just that, half of the game. When the teams came back from their halftime break, it was almost as if a new opponent had showed up at US Bank Stadium. The Saints pushed forward on drives, making three touchdowns, intercepting a Keenum pass, even blocking a punt. The specters of the Vikings curse started to appear before my eyes. It would happen again; our victory would be snatched away at the last second, leaving Minnesota pondering what went wrong yet again.

The fourth quarter was especially nail-biting. The competing teams went back and forth, the fate of the game in the balance. The Saints got their second and third touchdowns, putting them one point ahead of Minnesota, 21-20. Driving back on offense, the Vikings put the score back to 23-21. The relief was only temporary, though, as the Saints made it 24-23 after a field goal of their own with half a minute left. My family – and I'm sure everyone in Vikings fandom – waited with bated

It was the moment of truth. Our

Minnesota Vikings needed only a field goal to win, but that was asking a lot with only one timeout and 30 seconds left on the clock. An early first down got us to around our own 40-yard line, but after a few incomplete passes and 10 seconds left, it would take a miracle to get us into field-goal range.

Well, that miracle arrived, and more. On a last ditch pass, Keenum, under pressure, passed to the sideline and found Diggs at around the 35-yard line. Dodging a tackle, I first thought he would have to step out of bounds to stop the clock for a field goal. But then I - and Diggs - saw the open space all the way to the end zone. It was over. The Vikings pulled off the win.

My family's living room - and I'm sure the entire state of Minnesota - broke into uncontrollable cheering and clapping. We'd all been along this rollercoaster of a game - the assured feeling of an easy victory after the Vikings' fantastic first half, and the agony of defeat and resignation when it looked as if all was lost in the final seconds. And, of course, the amazing feeling of watching that final play and seeing Diggs take home the football for the game-winning touchdown. This game was a piece of art, truly one for the ages. Let's hope the momentum continues through to the big one.

fired up. They hope to teach their children how to manage their money and live life without debt. They also hope this will pass down to all of their future generations.

When the Dahlins refer to being debt-free they mean to have no debt other than a home mortgage. They still have a home mortgage but are trying to quickly pay it off.

"It really gave us hope that we could change things," Joel said. "It wasn't like we were in trouble or anything, but we just felt like we should be doing better."

After reading the book and listening to Ramsey's podcast, they became excited to make a change.

To become debt-free, the couple followed their plan. They said it wasn't easy, but they stuck with it. They found the plan to be harder at the beginning and challenging at different times, but the more progress they made the more excited they became about it.

All of their family – including their daughters Sabrina, 9, and Ziva, 7 – are involved in the plan, which includes basic principles to follow, and they continue to stick with it.

"One unexpected outcome was becoming better communicators with each other," Alison said. "Because the plan requires you to literally plan out every month together, it put us both on the same page with everything."

The Dahlins knew that every day on Dave Ramsey's radio show a person, couple or family will either call in or go into the studio to give their "debt-free scream." These are people who followed his plan and became debt-free.

They decided that to go to the Dave Ramsey Studio in Nashville, Tenn. and give their scream in person would be a cool way to celebrate a step in their financial journey. Alison and Joel turned the adventure into a road trip over spring break.

"The scream is an event where you share your story and at the end as a family yell at the top of your lungs "We're debtfree," Joel said. "It's an amazing experience."

They said the debt-free scream was fun for the kids and they looked forward to it and practiced all the way through their journey.

"It was exciting to be there, yet also a bit nerve-racking to be there," Joel said. "We knew there were listeners all over the country listening to our story. It was out of our comfort zone."

Even though it was out of their comfort zone, Joel and Alison are glad they visited the studio. They now want to help others become debt-free and plan to share Ramsey's information through their classes.

Becoming debt-free is only one step of the plan, we still are following the plan in what are referred to the "baby steps." Janelle Von Pinnon, publisher and owner of The Newsleaders, said she has read many of Ramsey's materials, including EntreLeadership, which she found very interesting and applicable to her business.

She said Ramsey is well-known and has a lot of insight into financial peace for couples, families and business owners.

Anyone interested in the classes is welcomed to attend the first night for free to see if it is something they think they might be interested in.

"The plan completely changed our life," Joel said. "We went from feeling stressed, living paycheck to paycheck to now debt-free, saving for the future, giving money to causes we believe in and enjoying our newfound financial freedom. We are so happy we did it."

People who are interested in attending the class should email the Dahlins by Jan. 19 at joelalisondahlin@gmail.com.

If this class date and time doesn't work for anyone who wants to participate in the classes, there are also other people in the area leading classes.

The Dahlins live in Sartell. Alison earned her master's degree in business administration from St. Cloud State University and works at CentraCare Health. Joel has a bachelor's degree in business computers information systems from SCSU and operates a small business doing development.
