It was a proud family moment when Carl Shobe and his grandfather showed up together at the Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang, South Korea.

Carl, 12, is a student at Kennedy Community School in St. Joseph. His grandfather on his mother's side is Gene Sandvig, 87, of Minneapolis, who was a competitor as a speed skater for the United States three times in the worldwide Winter Olympics - in 1952, 1956 and 1960.

Carl and his grandfather flew to South Korea in February to see some of the competitions and to be with Carl's parents, Dr. Joel and Susan Shobe, and also because Sandvig was invited to attend by the Korean Olympics Committee.

Soyka announces candidacy for sheriff job

(Three men have announced plans to run for Stearns County sheriff. Waite Park Police Chief Dave Bentrud was profiled in the Feb. 16 edition and Stearns County Lt. Robert Dickhaus was profiled in the Feb. 23 edition. Both stories are available at thenewsleaders.com.)

Sgt. Steve Soyka, a Stearns County Sheriff's Department deputy, has announced his intention to seek the sheriff position in the Nov. 8 election, a decision that forces a primary election Aug. 14.

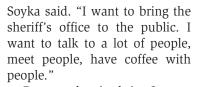

The primary election will determine which two of the three candidates will face off in the Nov. 8 general election.

Soyka announced his candidacy March 3. He's the current team commander for the Stearns-Benton SWAT unit and former commander of the Central Minnesota Violent Offender Task Force. He's also a sergeant serving in the Stearns County Sheriff Patrol Division.

Soyka

"(As sheriff), I will be much more community-oriented,"

Born and raised in Stearns County, Soyka graduated from St. Cloud Cathedral High School and from St. Cloud State University where he earned a degree in criminal justice.

He's been a law-enforcement employee for 27 years and served in a wide variety of duties, as well as volunteer work. For five of those years, he worked for the Benton County Sheriff's Department.

"Since I was 15 years old, I've wanted to be the Stearns County Sheriff," he said. "Now, after 27 years of protecting the people of Minnesota, I'm ready for the next step. I'm running for Stearns County Sheriff."

U.S. Postage Paid Joseph Né t. Joseph, MN 56374

Soyka is keen on four major goals - improving the safety of children, reducing drug abuse, getting violent criminals off the streets and the fight against sex-trafficking.

That, he said, cannot be accomplished without help from all county residents or without a mutual trust between law enforcement and the public.

Soyka also said public safety is dependent upon good, transparent communication between Soyka • page 7

Center aims to end youth homelessness

by Mike Knaak editor@thenewsleaders.com

A community problem that advocates say is largely hidden will soon get a highly visible solution.

Pathways 4 Youth, a resource center founded by central Minnesota's Rotary clubs, plans an open house from 4-7 p.m. Tuesday, March 20.

The center, 203 Cooper Ave. N., Suite 206, St. Cloud will open for clients the week of March 26.

While not a shelter, the center will offer help for homeless youth ages 16-23 to get them on a path to educational and career success.

St. Cloud Rotary Club took on what Pathways board president Tim Wensman called a "signature project."

"What if we could say there are no more homeless youth?"

Council submits grant app for Watab Park improvements

by Dennis Dalman news@thenewsleaders.com

Long-planned improvements to Watab Park in Sartell, including its popular wading pool, could be completed by spring 2019, especially if the city receives a parks grant.

The city council at its Feb. 26 meeting authorized the submission of a grant application by city staff for the park improvements. The grants are being given by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The total grant would cover the cost of the project, estimated at $282,000, but the city would be expected to pay back about half of that, $141,000. That city share of money could come from half-cent sales-tax revenue. The recipients of the grants will be announced in June.

Park improvements would include new playground equipment, rehab of the existing wading pool, new restrooms by the pool and resurfacing of the tennis courts.

If the grant is received, work could begin this fall. If the grant request fails, the city could decide to do the project anyway, possibly with funds from its interloan program.

Feb. 28

10:58 p.m. Traffic stop. Pinecone Road South and Sundance Road. An officer observed a driver pass without dimming his high beams. The officer stopped the driver. While speaking with the driver, the officer observed odors of burned marijuana. When the driver was questioned about the smell, he denied having any contraband in his vehicle. A second officer arrived and a vehicle search was conducted. Inside the vehicle, officers found drug paraphernalia and a small amount of a green leafy substance that field-tested positive for marijuana. The driver also possessed tobacco. Because he was under 18, he was cited for use of tobacco, possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

March 1

4:03 p.m. Vehicle crash. CR 1 and Heritage Drive. An officer was dispatched for a report of a two-vehicle crash. The officer arrived and found one vehicle to be blocking traffic on Heritage Drive. The officer met with both drivers, neither one stated they were injured. The driver of the vehicle blocking traffic stated she was in the roundabout attempting to head west on Heritage Drive. She stated the second vehicle involved in the crash failed to yield to her and entered the roundabout, causing the crash. The officer observed heavy damage to both vehicles leaving debris in the roadway. The officer completed a crash investigation and the second driver was issued a citation charging him with failure to yield to a motor vehicle in an intersection.

March 2

10:38 p.m. DWI. CR 133 and CR 4. Officers were dispatched for a driving complaint coming into Sartell on CR 133. An officer located the vehicle and followed it to observe driving conduct. The officer stopped the vehicle after observing several moving violations. While speaking with the driver, the officer observed signs of impairment and an open container of alcohol. The driver failed sobriety tests. The driver provided a breath sample indicating he was twice the legal limit. The driver was then placed under arrest and could be charged with fourth-degree DWI. The vehicle was towed from the scene and the driver was transported to Stearns County Jail.

March 3

9:43 p.m. Intoxicated person. Evergreen Drive. Officers were dispatched to a restaurant for a report of an intoxicated man. Officers met with the man and restaurant staff. Because of the man's level of intoxication, officers were unable to get a home address or identification. The man provided a breath sample indicating he was over three times the legal limit. Officers transported the man to a detoxification center in St. Cloud.

March 4

5:10p.m. Traffic stop. 1105 Central Park Blvd. While driving north in the 800 block of Pinecone Road N. an officer observed a pickup traveling south at 53 mph in a 40-mph zone. The officer stopped the pickup. The driver admitted to speeding but was unsure how fast he was going. The driver was cited for speeding.

March 5

5:47p.m. Vehicle in the ditch. Whippoorwill Way and 19th Avenue S. An officer was dispatched for a report of a vehicle that crashed into the ditch off 19th Avenue S. The officer found the vehicle off the roadway just north of Whippoorwill Way. No injuries were reported and the driver of the vehicle had called for a tow.

March 6

3:43a.m. Medical. 12th Avenue N. An officer responded to a report of a 43-year-old woman with chest pain. The officer observed the woman was breathing fast and appeared to be uncomfortable. The officer provided oxygen and assisted the woman in controlling her breathing. Gold Cross Ambulance arrived and transported the woman to St. Cloud Hospital.

dic surgeon (spine specialist) for St. Cloud Orthopedics in Sartell's Medical Campus. It was a very happy family time, marred a bit by the fact Shobes' daughter, Ilsa, could not be with them. She was too busy with her engineering and pre-med studies at the University of Minnesota. Mother Susan also studied engineering.

What brought the Shobes to the Olympics? It was two forms of expertise that dovetailed together. Joel is a medical expert, and Susan is a speed-skating referee. Both were chosen by the International Skating Union, of which both are members, to serve at the 2018 Winter Olympics.

Joel worked at the shorttrack speed-skating competitions; Susan worked as a championship referee for the long-track speed-skating events.

Joel had served before, at the Vancouver Winter Olympics in 2010. He is one of eight doctors in the world who works, through the ISU, at world-class competitions. Each of the doctors takes turns and serves when the union chooses them. Joel's duty is to supervise and care for the short-track athletes and to coordinate testing to assure all participants are free of doping drugs.

The Shobes were happy to be chosen to serve this year at the same Olympics event. Susan, who has been a member of the ISU for more than 20 years, is one of the ISU's 25 championship refugees worldwide. This was the first year the ISU had chosen her to referee at an Olympic event.

Speed-skating and skiing are practically a genetic legacy for the Minnesota-born Sandvig family. Father Gene has been to every Winter Olympics since 1952, the first of the three in which he competed. When Susan was a girl she would accompany her father to many of the games, where he served as a coach or referee. Gene's wife, Carolyn, 81, has had a lifelong love of downhill skiing. Ilsa is also a speed skater and will soon compete in the World University Games.

Susan's cousin, Amy Peterson, who was also coached in speed skating by Sandvig, was one of the flag bearers in the Winter Olympics in Sochi, Russia, during its opening ceremony four years ago.

And what about Dr. Joel? Does he skate?

"Well, he's learning," said his wife. "He will try just about anything."

"Mom couldn't go to the Olympics last month," Susan said. "She had to stay home, but she will go to the Figure-Skating Championships in Milan, Italy, at the end of March."

Skating has become such a big part of the Shobes' lives it's a wonder how they find the time.

Shortly after their return from South Korea, Susan flew to Salt Lake City, Utah, to referee a Junior Speed-Skating World Championship. Last week, Joel flew to Montreal, Canada, to assist at a shorttrack speed-skating event. After that it's off to Milan for the figure-skating competition, the one Susan's mother will attend.

"The Olympics in South Korea was a great experience," Susan said. "It was very exciting, and I was so happy to be chosen by the ISU to help out."

Joel agreed.

"It was a great experience," he said. "It was such a big event with all the people, all the security, and it was sometimes difficult logistically to get from one place to another. The competitions were fabulous, very exciting. And it was great to be part of it and to help the athletes."

Fortunately, no catastrophic injuries resulted. In one incident, a man was cut by a skate during training. In another, a woman fell and sprained her ankle badly. As far as incidents of doping, there were none discovered among the skaters, Shobe noted.

The sport

There are two categories of speed skating in the Olympics – short-track skating and longtrack skating.

The long-track competition involves two skaters racing in laps against one another in a timed event on a 400-meter-long oval track.

Short-racing involves four to six skaters doing laps around a shorter oval about the size of a hockey rink. Whoever crosses the finish line first wins.

The distances vary by category from 500 meters up to 5,000-meter relays for men and 3,000-meter relays for women.

One of the speed-skating medalists in South Korea was an American – Pennsylvania born-and-raised John-Henry Krueger, 22, who earned silver in the 1,000-meter men's short-track race.

An American team (Heather Bergsma, Brittany Bowe, Mia Manganello and Carlijn Schoutens) won a bronze medal for the Team Pursuit category.

Friday, March 16, 2018 Sartell-St. Stephen Newsleader • www.thenewsleaders.com FoodShare month best time to give

by Dennis Dalman news@thenewsleaders.com

Sartell does not have a citybased food shelf, but people in need, people who are hungry, can get help at either the Salvation Army or Catholic Charities, both St. Cloud-based.

Sartell residents, churches and businesses have long contributed to both of those food shelves by donating tons and tons of food items on a regular bases, as well as generous money donations.

Other area residents who can receive food from those two food shelves, in addition to Sartell residents, are those who live in St. Cloud, St. Augusta, Sauk Rapids and Waite Park. St. Joseph has its own independent food shelf.

The best time to give is during FoodShare Month. Catholic Charities and Salvation Army are both members of the Twin Cities-based Minnesota FoodShare, which is an interfaith collaboration. FoodShare gathers a pool of incentive funds donated by huge companies, such as Target, General Mills and Land O Lakes. Those incentive funds are then distributed to member food shelves throughout the state depending on how much food those local food shelves take in during the month of March. The more food donated, the more incentive funds received from FoodShare.

Pack the Porches

A crucial date is Friday, March 23, dubbed "Pack the Porches Day," because on that day food donations will be accepted from the month of March, which is 7 a.m.-1 p.m. at three locations: March is the ideal time to restock HealthPartners Central Minnesota Clinic, 2251 Connecticut Ave. (in Sartell's medical campus); St. Cloud Hyundai, 900 Second St. S., Waite Park; and Pioneer Place on Fifth Theatre, 22 Fifth Ave. S., St. Cloud.

> "Pack the Porches is a way for people to come together as a community to make a difference, to thank those who stop by to the businesses that will provide coffee to go," said Steve Pareja, executive director of Catholic Charities for the Diocese of St. Cloud and a deacon at St. Francis Xavier Church in Sartell. "It's really a great way to come together."

> Pareja noted that March is also important because after January and February, food stocks at local food shelves tend to dwindle, so Arlan Pocklington of Monticello, a Salvation Army volunteer, stocks the food shelf. The food shelf serves families in cities in the greater St. Cloud area, including Sartell.

"I have two adopted children from Ethiopia, and there wasn't a 'dry eye' in the house when we brought them home."

As you may have guessed, I am passionate about Dry Eye treatment. I head up a Dry Eye clinic at Insight Eye Care, where we take special care to take a thorough history and determine the best treatment plan for each patient. We then follow up with our patients and modify treatments as needed since each patient's dry eye is unique. I am excited that there are so many emerging options for dry eye patients, especially really difficult cases. Ask us today about your symptoms. I don't suffer from dry eye, but tired eyes, chasing two kiddos.

"The more food and funds we can secure locally, the more those incentive funds will come back to help hungry people in the St. Cloud area," Pareja said. "When you consider that our buying power allows Catholic Charities to use just $10 to purchase $30 worth of groceries, every dollar is significant."

Donations to Catholic Charities

Aside from "Pack the Porches Day," any day in March - in fact, any day year 'round - is a good time to contribute, Pareja noted. At Catholic Charities, nonperishable food items can be dropped off from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday; and from 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Wednesdays. The Catholic Charities food shelf is at 157 Roosevelt Road in St. Cloud. Monetary donations can be made online at ccstcloud.org

Donations to Salvation Army

The FoodShare campaign for the Salvation Army actually started in late February and will run through April 8.

There are several ways to help. Nonperishable food items can be dropped off at Salvation Army headquarters from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday at 400 Hwy. 10 S. in St. Cloud (on the frontage road across the highway from Cash Wise East).

Monetary donations can be made online at salvationarmynorth.org. Contributors can type in the St. Cloud ZIP code for the Salvation Army (56304) if they want to be sure their donation will be directed to that particular location. There are 19 Salvation Army foodshelf facilities in Minnesota.

In addition, people can start a food drive in schools, churches, businesses and neighborhoods. It's as easy as setting up a big box in a lobby and encouraging people to bring in food items.

For more information, call the Salvation Army at 320-252-4552.

Volunteers

Without volunteers food shelf services would be virtually impossible, and food shelf volunteers are needed at both the Salvation Army and the Catholic Charities facilities.

Volunteers can work as few or as many hours as they like. To find out more about volunteer options, visit the websites:

• salvationarmynorth.org • ccstcloud.org

The needs

Trina Dietz, a Sartell resident, notices time and again that people in need defy the often-negative stereotypes that unfairly "stick" to them.

"People who are hungry look an awful lot like me," she said.

Dietz is senior communications director for Catholic Charities Emergency Services. She has been a part of that organization for 10 years.

The Catholic Charities Food Shelf, she said, serves about 2,000 families per month, adding that less than 5 percent of those families need food shelf food every month, and about 30 percent needed food only for one time during 2017. Most food shelf recipients are working people who just cannot make ends meet for a number of reasons - absence of a spouse, family emergencies, illnesses and so forth, Dietz added.

"It's so hard for them to ask for help," she said. "I've become much less judgmental. It's so easy to judge. Solutions are not always simple. Even for those who don't have jobs, it's often difficult. Getting a job for some people is not always as easy as it sounds."

Dietz said working at Catholic Charities has given her a widened perception of the world.

Whenever she is having a bad day, Dietz said she thinks of the people she's met through Catholic Charities, the people having troubles, tragedies, complications in their lives, and she realizes how fortunate she is.

"It puts the whole world in a new perspective, and I am so gratified to help others in need," she said. "It's been a blessing for my children, too - to have a mom doing this kind of work."

One in 10

One in 10 Minnesotans experiences occasional food insecurity, according to statistics supplied by the Salvation Army.

Food insecurity is defined as people having inconsistent access to food because of lack of money or other factors in their lives.

About 14 percent of children in Minnesota are "food-insecure," and about 10 percent of the state's children were living below the poverty line in 2016.

Statistics also reveal food insecurity among senior citizens is increasing.

Wensman said.

Part of inspiration for Pathways came from board vice president Bill Maney during a mission trip to Guatemala. He heard a homeless person talk about his experiences.

"I said 'we got to do something," Maney said.

The Rotary members approached the project as a startup business by first visiting facilities in Duluth, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Elk River and Anoka.

The St. Cloud center is a replication of the Hope 4 Youth program in Anoka. As a part of the partnership, Hope 4 Youth provided programming and hired and trained the staff, according to Hope 4 Youth executive director Lisa Jacobson.

"We helped them pick a location and helped them design what each room needs to be," Jacobson said.

Then they gathered data by asking "Where did you sleep the night of Jan. 26, 2017."

The research revealed 99 homeless youth ages 16-24 and an estimated 25-30 couch hoppers.

The youth were living in emergency shelters as well as temporary housing. But most were couch hopping – temporarily staying with friends or relatives – or staying in cars, portable toilets, tents and leantos.

The group found homeless young people from across central Minnesota including Sartell, St. Joseph, St. Cloud, Sauk Rapids, Waite Park, Kimball, Foley, Rice and Little Falls.

"Youth are a hidden problem," Wensman said. "They are in every community. If you see a kid walking around with two backpacks, there is something going on."

The research also found:

• 200 school-age homeless children in the St. Cloud school district;

coming homeless, youth are approached to take part in sex trafficking;St. Cloud has the second most sex-trafficked youth of all Minnesota cities.

One in four homeless young people end up being homeless adults with a lifelong cost to society of $613,000. Wensman said the key to the project's successful launch has been its partnerships. In addition to St. Cloud Rotary, the Creat Biver Betery of Sartell the Great River Rotary of Sartell and Sauk Rapids, Granite Rotary and Rotaract joined the effort with a total of more than 220 members.

The Rotarians also reached out to Stearns County Social Services, Catholic Charities and Youth for Christ.

Rotary members presented the plan to the community and were greeted with enthusiastic support. The effort raised $300,000 cash plus inkind contributions from businesses and individuals. Volunteers spent thousands of hours since December remodeling the 3,600-square-foot space that once housed the Anderson Trucking offices.

"This is an essential investment in the community," Wensman said.

The result is a center that will offer a wide range of services for youth when it's open from 2-7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"We want youth to know they are valued, trusted and we'll work with them to rebuild their lives," said board member John Bodette. at 320-316-1637. To donate, tact Callie at 320-316-1635. "I look at all the opp nities my family has had education," Maney said. "I

Services will include a nightly hot meal that will provide a chance to develop relationships and connect with mentors. Other services include a food pantry, showers, laundry, computers, clothes for job interviews, lockers and mailboxes.

Youth will be served by a full-time program coordinator and part-time volunteer coordinator.

Medical professionals will be available to help with health problems. Catholic Charities will have one full-time case worker on-site. Field outreach workers from Catholic Charities and Stearns County Social Services will have office space at the center.

The staff will be assisted by five or six volunteers each day. The center is prepared to serve 25-35 people a day. Pathways aims to help homeless youth with adult social skills such as how to balance a checkbook and prepare and dress for a job interview.

"Pathways uses our connections to help with education and jobs," Bodette said. "We want them to get career jobs and help them on the track for training and placement. We'll use our connections in the business community to get them jobs."

Wensman expects the center will need about $135,000 per year to keep going. The fundraising plan includes donations from individuals, businesses and grants, and maybe helping youth develop a business that will bring in some money.

"If we get even one person on the path to education and a career job, the savings in public expenses will more than cover our expenses for the project," Wensman said.

Pathways offers one-time and long-term volunteer opportunities. For more information go to www.pathways4youthmn.org or contact Katlyn to volunteer at 320-316-1637. To donate, contact Callie at 320-316-1635.

"I look at all the opportunities my family has had for education," Maney said. "I look at these kids and it's time to give back so they have the same opportunities for education and career jobs."

Our View Food shelves need your help all year long

Assigning a month to a cause or concern serves to bring attention and focus engagement. That's the case this month with hunger and food shelves. The Minnesota FoodShare March Campaign helps stock almost 300 food shelves statewide. In neips stock almost 300 tood shelves statewide. In 2017, more than $8 million and 4.7-million pounds of food were donated.

FoodShare gathers a pool of incentive funds donated by huge companies, such as Target, General Mills and Land O Lakes. Those incentive funds are then distributed to member food shelves throughout the state depending on how much food those local food shelves take in during the month of March. The more food donated, the more incentive funds received from FoodShare.

This year's campaign runs until April 8.

Donations typically fall after Christmas and March is a good time to focus on restocking the shelves.

In cental Minnesota, the Salvation Army and Catholic Charities food shelves take part in the March campaign. The St. Joseph Community Food Shelf does not benefit from the campaign but it's still a good time to make a cash or food donation. St. Joseph's food shelf serves 70 to 80 families a month.

Across the state, Minnesotans made more than 3 million visits to food shelves in 2017. The number of visits hasn't changed much in the last five years, but according to Hunger Solutions, the number of seniors visiting food shelves is up more than 27 percent from five years ago. Seniors on fixed incomes are finding it increasingly difficult to afford food. The rise of mobile food shelves makes it easier for seniors with transportation challenges to use the services.

The need for you to contribute is great.

One in 10 Minnesotans does not have enough food for a healthy active life. Almost 14 percent of children have food needs.

Food shelves serving the area include:

Salvation Army, 400 Highway 10 S. in St. Cloud Catholic Charities, 157 Roosevelt Road in St. Cloud

St. Joseph Community Food Shelf, 25 First Ave. SE.

You can help in many ways.

Cash donations are always welcome. According to Minnesota Food Share, cash donations made to Minnesota FoodShare or directly to your local food shelf make the greatest impact, allowing food shelves to buy according to their communities' needs and stretching your $1 into more than $4 worth of food-shelf items.

Nonperishable food items can be left at community collection boxes.

According to Ann Scherer at the St. Joseph food shelf, items constantly needed are pancake mix and pancake syrup, jellies and jams, laundry soap, personal-care items such as shampoo, conditioner, deodorant, toothbrushes, toothpaste and other types of personal-hygiene products.

You can always volunteer your time at the food shelves. It's a great way to meet your neighbors and help your community.

And remember, when March is over, the need continues. Your help is needed every month of the year.

Opinion Hockey is the real March Madness "How's your bracket coming?"

How's your bracket coming?" That question could be heard in every office and sports bar this past week as March Madness, also known as the NCAA Men's Division 1 Basketball Tournament, kicked in.

After selection Sunday, college basketball fans studied the odds and bracketology predictions to pick the final winner in the 68-team tournament.

But here in the State of Hockey, March Madness should be about pucks and sticks, not dunks and threes.

The Gophers' last appearance in the national basketball tournament was in 1997. Bill Clinton was president, the Dow closed the year at 7,908, gas cost $1.22...and you could still shop at Woolworth's.

Hockey's doing a little better. Consider the facts in the State of Hockey.

St. Cloud State University's men's hockey team has been ranked No. 1 among the country's 60 Division I hockey programs for most of the season. They captured the Penrose Cup by winning the National Collegiate Hockey Conference. No matter what happens at the NCHC tournament this weekend in St. Paul, the Huskies are headed to the NCAA tournament for the eighth time in 10 years, including one Frozen Four appearance. You can watch the Frozen Four starting April 5 at the Xcel Mike Knaak Editor

Energy Center in St. Paul.

Minnesota has five Division I men's teams – SCSU, Minnesota, Minnesota Duluth, Minnesota State-Mankato and Bemidji. Four were rated in the Top 20 this season.

Women's college hockey is doing pretty well too. The University of Minnesota women were national champs in 2012, 2013, 2015 and 2016. When the Gophers weren't winning, the Bulldogs were, bringing the national title home to Duluth in 2008 and 2010.

And then there's the Wild. The team continues to set records for the number of sellouts. Last season, all 41 regular-season home games were sellouts with 34 contests topping 19,000 in attendance.

The past two weekends, the state girls' and boys' hockey tournaments filled the X and Ridder Arena with the boy's attendance rivaling the Wild crowds.

If you couldn't attend a game in person last weekend, you could easily burn out the batteries in your remote control flipping from the Wild to the high school tournament to the Huskies.

And there's more.

In January, the St. Cloud area hosted Hockey Day Minnesota. The St. Cloud Youth Hockey Association rounded up more than 250 volunteers for the weekend. Organizers estimated more than 20,000 people attended events on Saturday, Jan. 20, including high school and college games on the rink adjacent to Lake George. The next day, about 1,500 youth hockey players competed in rinks on the lake.

Fans of any sports won't find a more thrilling contest than the Olympic Gold Medal game won by the USA women's hockey team in an emotional rematch of the 2014 championship. The Americans beat Canada 3-2 in an overtime shootout. Seven team members were Minnesotans.

A few years ago, a Sports Illustrated writer referred to the National Hockey League as a "niche sport" without much nationwide appeal. That dismissive comment doesn't explain sold-out arenas far from the frozen north, including the league's newest expansion team, the division-leading Las Vegas Gold Knights.

So, sports fans, don't be distracted by the brackets and betting pools. Keep your eyes on the real March Madness here in the State of Hockey.

Hagerman banishes news from his life

Should Erik Hagerman be envied or pitied? I, for one, cannot decide.

Hagerman, 53, lives on a pig farm near Athens in southeastern Ohio. He made a bundle in the corporate world and, like a retro hippy, decided to "drop out" of the rat race three years ago. Now he is a kind of latter-day Henry David Thoreau, seeking solace and wisdom in his woodsy niche.

I learned about Hagerman in a wonderful feature story, "The Man Who Knew Too Little," written by Sam Dolnick in the March 10 New York Times.

Hagerman not only dropped out from the rat race, he dropped out from all contact with anything going on in the world. He was so shaken and disgusted by the election of Donald Trump, he decided to become a kind of head-in-sand ostrich. He intended to tune out the news for just a few days, but now it's been more than a year. He knows nothing about White House chaos or Robert Mueller or Stormy Daniels. He is oblivious to the Me Too movement, mass shootings, hurricanes, fires and other disasters.

Hagerman's determined disengagement from the world of news is "draconian and complete," as he told Dolnick. "It's not like I wanted to just steer away from Trump or shift the conversation," he said. "It was like I was a vampire and any photon of Trump would turn me to dust."

When I read that, I burst out laughing because I could so relate to Hagerman's attitude. Since Trump was elected I, too, have felt like banishing at least TV, if not newspapers and magazines. Just the sight and sound of that sneering, pouting, blustering charlatan, that Narcissist-in-Chief, has me lunging for the mute button and more often lately, the off button. On busy days when I keep the TV off, I feel so much better.

And it's not just Trump. It's an overload of everything: too many witless commercials, too many catastrophes man-made and otherwise, too many killings, too many scandals, too many noisy arguments from talking heads, too much cruelty to children and animals, too much trivial nonsense, too much of this, too much of that. Too much of everything.

But, alas, the "news junkie" in me keeps going back for more. My morbid curiosity about this floundering world is at least buoyed up by slender threads of hope, but those threads are getting slenderer the longer this president stays in power. This country, this world, in my opinion, would be infinitely better without big bad bully Trump at the helm, with someone like Hillary Clinton or John Kasich guiding the ship of state. Well, as they say, wish in one hand, dream in the other.

Almost like a choreographer, Hagerman has worked out a soft-shoe strategy for his no-news life. Friends and relatives keep any mention of any news from him. During conversations, they've learned to do a verbal tango around what's in the news. In the morning, Hagerman drives into Athens for coffee and sits at the café, scrupulously avoiding any newspapers that may be hanging around. He admits he sometimes gets bored. Watching the weather all the time, he said, wears a little thin.

But then one day he discovered what he calls "The Lake." It's a 45-acre long-abandoned coal-mine property he bought near Athens. With the help of an ecologist friend, he is restoring those ravaged but beautiful woods, living in them, enjoying that lake and that land the way Thoreau famously loved Walden's Pond. Hagerman will give the land to the public when he dies.

And that is the way Hagerman the newsless man decided to leave his mark on this world – to nurture a patch of nature back to health and give it to the people. Should we envy him? Pity him? Hard to say. But one thing's for sure: In his extreme way, Hagerman is living his life in a way all of us wish for from time to time – a longing to free our stuffed minds and heavy hearts from – as poet William Wordsworth put it – a "world that is too much with us."

Soyka said law enforcement work has changed dramatically in the past 27 years since he first started his career. The brutal realities of new kinds of crimes have caused new focus for sheriff and police departments, such as the dangers of terrorism, the widespread increase in sex trafficking and the prevalence of drug use, including opiod abuse. Those problems require constant communication among law enforcement, other agencies and contact with the public, he said.

125 students take part in walkout

School in Parkland, Fla. Superintendent Jeff Schwiebert sent this statement to parents of high school students after Wednesday morning's walkout. "While I applaud our students for using their First Amendment rights, I am also required to follow school policy and provide a normal school 'consequence' for missing class. Depending on the individual student's history of missing classes, this discipline could be very minor or significant. Students had a choice and they knew the consequences. My understanding of the issue is students want their voices to be heard in the debate about school safety and what the government should do about it. Our students are practicing an act of civil disobedience and are willing to receive their consequence," Schwiebert wrote.

Sartell wrestlers compete at the state wrestling tournament

by Marie Olson contributing writer

Three Sartell Sabres' wrestlers qualified for the State Wrestling Tournament March 1-3 at Xcel Energy Center in St. Paul. Junior Jackson Penk (120 pounds) went 2-2 on the weekend, falling one match short of placing in the tournament. He won his first match 10-2, then lost his next match by fall. In his first wrestle-back match he won by fall in :28 seconds, then lost his next match by a score of 9-6. Penk finished the season with 41 wins which is the second most in a season in Sartell.

Junior Nick Pelach (126 pounds) went 2-2 at the state tournament as well. Pelach won his first match 7-6 and then fell to a nationally ranked wrestler in the next round. Pelach won his first wrestle-back match 14-7 before falling a match short of placing. Pelach finished the season with 38 wins which is tied for the fifth most in the school history. Pelach also moved to fifth in all-time career wins at Sartell High School, pushing his total up to 127. Junior Cole Fibranz finished third in the state tournament at 220 pounds. Fibranz won his first match by a fall and then won the next round 9-0. In the semifinals, Fibranz fell 4-3 to the eventual state champion: he then won by a fall in the wrestle backs and avenged one of his losses this season winning 5-1 over Sam Horn of Eden Prairie in the third-place match. Fibranz broke school records this season with the most wins in a season with 43; he also broke the record for most falls in a season and team points scored in a season. All three wrestlers will be back next season.
