Parents wave, joyous children shout 'The Ladies!'

news@thenewsleaders.com

You'd think at first the two women walking through a Sartell neighborhood were a crown-wearing royal couple as neighbors smile, wave and yell hello to them.

They even have a royal-sounding name: "The Ladies."

"It's The Ladies!" some children yell with sudden excitement as they run up to chat with them.

Now and then, some adults working in their yard gardens stand and greet the ladies and offer them fresh garden pro-

School district's finances are healthy, audit shows

by Mike Knaak

news@thenewsleaders.com

Health topics - both physical and financial - dominated the Nov. 15 Sartell-St. Stephen school board meeting.

District leaders will discuss modifications to the current Safe Learning Plan, including masking, at its Dec. 1 work group meeting. In the meantime, the district needs to comply with federal and state OSHA guidelines for staff vaccinations, Human Resources Krista Durrwach-

The state has advised the district to comply with the rules while lawsuits in federal court move ahead. By Dec. 5, the district will need to determine vaccination status of staff and by Jan. 3 implement a testing program for people who have not been vaccinated.

The district is not mandating vaccinations but has to follow the federal rules, Durrwachter

Auditors gave the district a clean bill of health on its annual financial audit.

Because of the large amount of federal Covid relief and nutrition money that flowed into the district during the audit period that ended on June 30, auditors focused on those accounts and found no problems.

Auditors flagged one issue the lack of segregation of accounting duties. Because of a small staff, it's not possible to separate accounting duties such as recording receipts and preparing and mailing checks. The same problem has been noted in past years and it's a common finding in cities and school districts with small business staffs.

Thirty-one employees of the DeZURIK Co. in Sartell recently completed 48 hours of training to become members of a medical responder team at the plant and beyond.

The training sessions, which took place at the plant, lasted throughout October. Those who participated did their learning mostly during working hours, and DeZURIK paid their wages during training times.

DeZURIK, the maker of specialty valves, has for many decades been one of the economic bedrocks/employers in Sartell. The company started in Sartell and is known throughout the world for its valves, some of them huge in scope. The company has about 300 onsite employees and others who work remotely.

The state-certified licensed responders are now gung-ho ready to respond immediately to any medical crisis or workplace accident on the premises. Their training will allow them to help anywhere outside of the plant if they should witness or be called to an emergency, including right in their own homes with their own family members, guests or neighbors. The responders are now also Red Cross-certified.

Daniel R. Brockton, 81 May 16, 1940-Nov. 5, 2021 Longville (formerly of Sartell)

Daniel R. Brockton, 81, of Longville, died Nov. 5 while surrounded by family while in hospice care in Baxter. He was diagnosed at Mayo in 2017 and treated by

Brockton

CRMC Oncology in Crosby.

Per Brockton's wishes there will be no funeral; the family may plan a get-together in the spring.

Brockton was born May 16, 1940 in Northfield, to Elroy and Maxine Brockton. With his family with him, he left us on November 5, 2021 while in hospice care in Baxter, MN.

Brockton grew up in the Northfield-Dundas area and graduated from Northfield High School in 1959 and married his high school sweetheart Pat Klingbile. He attended the University of Minnesota before transferring to St. Olaf, graduating in 1964 with a bachelor's degree in English education. He wrestled in both high school and college and won several awards and also worked at the Northfield Farm Service.

Brockton began teaching at Morris and Princeton, then earned a certification to be a librarian/a-v coordinator; Litchfield was his first job in that area. In 1969, after his wife graduated from St. Cloud State University, both were hired in the Sartell-St. Stephen school district and spent the rest of their careers there. Dan also coached wrestling at Morris, Princeton and Sartell. He went through expansion programs developing libraries for two new buildings; he also helped develop and supervise computer labs, then a new concept. While teaching, early traveling included fishing and canoeing trips to northern M innesota, the Canadian wilderness and a road trip to the west coast

The couple both retired in 1997 and moved to their lake home on Long Lake in Longville where they had been building their future retirement home since 1981. They learned a lot about construction and basically did everything except the well and septic system. Besides relaxing, those first few years at the lake were spent finishing the house, landscaping, and building a workshop and two garages. Dan didn't keep busy enough so worked part-time a few years at Arrowhead Lumber. In the couple's spare time, they volunteered driving seniors to errands and medical appointments. They also helped neighbors and friends with building projects including a complete cabin.

The couple loved to travel and

The complainant called the instructor of the class who called all attendees, but no one had the wrong gun. The complainant was missing a Mossberg 500 but had a Remington 870. Ladies

For up to an hour, they walk and talk, often sitting for rest periods on the bench swings next to the ponds. They love to chat with the neighbors who pass by and the kids who run to greet their favorite "ladies."

Marilyn

Marilyn and her husband, Terry, (now both retired) hail from the Baxter area, near Brainerd. They owned a jewelry store there, then moved to central Minnesota where Marilyn worked at Herberger's in St. Cloud and Terry worked for Hustad Homes.

"When we moved many, many years ago to this place in Sartell, there were cornstalks in the backyard, and we could sometimes hear cows mooing when our windows were open. It was mainly farmland then," Marilyn said. "This city has grown so much since then."

Her walks with Janel are relaxing breaks from busy days.

"On our walks, what do we talk about? Well, you name it," she said, laughing. "We talk about our health – aches and pains. We talk about our children and grandchildren and about my great-grandchildren. We talk about our pets, our hobbies, and we talk and laugh about a lot of dumb stuff, like how so many piles of leaves can blow into Janel's yard."

As the weather gets colder, the two ladies' walks become fewer.

"Our walking days get mighty slim this time of year," Marilyn said.

It's almost puzzle season again for Marilyn. One of her winter hobbies is doing jigsaw puzzles, lots and lots of them.

The Kreilings are parents of four children, five grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Raised near Buckman, Janel has worked as a docks receiver and in merchandising for 31 years at Macy's department store in Crossroads Center in St. Cloud.

A tad younger than Marilyn, she has two daughters and five grandchildren.

"I so enjoy my walks with Marilyn," she said, "and I enjoy the neighbors we see. They always wave and say hi. Such nice people live in and around that neighborhood. We love to see them on our walks."

Many of the children call Janel "the rock lady." For years, they have been thrilled by the painted rocks Janel leaves for children to find – mostly by or near the two ponds on their circular walking route.

"When I was laid off from work during the pandemic last year, I put (painted) rocks all around those ponds, knowing the little ones would find them. Later, many of the children, once they discovered who the rock-painter was, would run over to talk to "The Ladies" and tell them how much fun it is to find the rocks.

An arts-and-crafts hobbyist, Janel creates art, including painted rocks, for her special causes, and making greeting cards and paintings for schools, nursing homes and veterans' groups, such as the Eagle's Healing Nest in Sauk Centre.

Throughout the years, Janel has painted a virtual ton of rocks (perhaps more). She gets the rocks from expeditions to the Great Lakes (lakes Superior and Michigan). She has a campground base in Grand Marais on the North Shore, and that is where she began her rock-painting hobby.

The painted rocks range in size from about an inch wide to about five inches. Janel uses acrylic paint for her rocks, which comprise a vast variety of whimsical critters and designs: everything from baby jellyfish to unicorns and even a "pandemic rock" with a face mask painted on it.

Every summer, Janel's grandchildren from Colorado come for a two-week visit. Every time, the kids can't wait for Janel to bring out her collected rocks and her paints so they, too, can paint rocks.

Janel said the joy, happiness and love she puts into her arts and crafts is returned many times over.

"One of my grandkids – a Cub Scout in Colorado – started a gift drive for veterans. Twenty-eight Colorado families will send gift boxes for veterans to the Eagle's Healing Nest in Sauk Centre."

Marilyn and Janel, the "Two Ladies," are already looking forward to more walks come next spring.

"We have a lot in common," Janel said. "We're both moms, grandmas, hard workers. We both love animals. Marilyn feeds the squirrels around here, and they are now eating pumpkin seeds."

Said Marilyn: "When I first met Janel 31 years ago, we just clicked. I've known and sometimes babysat her two girls since they were just kids."

To the neighbors by the two ponds, a sure sign of spring's arrival, as sure as robins, is the sight of the "Two Ladies" walking, smiling and waving – and sometimes leaving painted rocks.

onsite that will make the difference if a life is on the line here at work, in their homes or in our community," said Brandy Fischer, DeZURIK's health-and-safety director.

It was Fischer who suggested the training program, with De-ZURIK's blessing. It is similar to another one Fischer started when she worked in a sugar-beet plant in Renville. After the program was first announced for DeZURIK volunteers, Fischer said she was pleasantly stunned about how employees came forward immediately to join on.

Dubbed the "Code Blue Team," the responders learned how to respond quickly and help in the wake of heart attacks, diabetic responses, allergenic crises, air-passage obstructions, cases of bleeding and shock, bone injuries, poisoning, childbirth and much more. They learned CPR and how to use a heart defibrillator, among many other skills.

When and if they hear on the intercom "Code Blue" in the plant, the team immediately responds to the scene of the crisis. 911 will also be called immediately. DeZURIK also paid $20,000 to have a fully-equipped first-aid room created in the middle of the plant where people can be assessed and treated.

The teachers of the course were Patrick Boon and Brent Ambuehl of Central Minnesota Health and Training, and De-ZURIK medical director Dr. Alan Olson. All those who completed the course can be recertified each year with an additional 16 hours of training updates.

Fischer said she and others are proud of the program and its graduates because they encompass DeZURIK's core values of thriving together, a "can do" attitude and "high power – low ego."

The audit report noted the cost of separating the duties exceeds the benefits.

The district's financial health is supported by the size of its unassigned fund balance. District policy calls for a balance of at least 10 percent of expenses. For the most recent year, the balance stands at 14.2 percent, or $6.4 million. That's enough for the district to operate for a month and half.

State revenue accounts for 81.2 percent of the district's budget of almost $49 million. Local property taxes account for 9.4 percent with other federal and state revenue making up the rest.

The audit report compares the Sartell-St. Stephen's general fund revenue and expenses with similar districts and with the state average.

Sartell-St. Stephen's general fund revenue per student is $843 compared with $2,477 at similar districts and with a $2,180 statewide average.

General fund expenses per student served shows a similar trend. Sartell-St. Stephen spends $10,320 per student compared with $13,586 in districts with similar enrollment and a statewide average of $13,313.

The audit was conducted by BergenKDV.

The board will meet in a work session at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 1, at the high school.

The annual truth in taxation meeting will be 6 p.m. Monday, Dec. 20, at the high school followed by the regular monthly board meeting.

Bus driver, crafter Etienne inspires fun, whimsy

This is Catrice Etienne in one of her many whimsical disguises - a "Kung Fu cat."

by Dennis Dalman news@thenewsleaders.com

Sartell school-bus driver Catrice Etienne has long believed that life should - as much as possible - be enlivened by heaping helpings of fun.

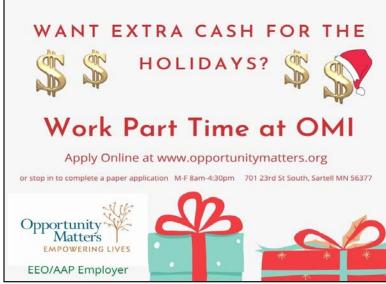

Her children passengers think so, too. They love to laugh at Etienne's antics - the way she'll dress up in goofy costumes, the way she cracks jokes, the way she loves her job and being protective of her

"I get along with kids because I can communicate on their level," she said, adding she thinks of them as small people, who just haven't become tall yet.

She has been driving school bus since February 2019.

Besides her school-bus driving, Etienne is also a dedicated crafter who loves making jewelry and other art works, using her sense of fun, whimsy and improvisation as her inspirations. In crafting her necklaces, earrings, bracelets and other objects, she uses all kinds of "found" objects, some of them so ordinary and homely that people smile and react with delight oddly beautiful new uses. example, some of her earrings she makes using bottlecaps or tiny playing cards or even discarded pencil erasers.

"I love to go to garage sales to look for stuff to use," she said. "I buy old pieces of jewelry and use the parts to refashion into my own new pieces. I also look for T-shirts that I can cut apart and use to make quilts."

Etienne is adept at just about all arts and crafts, and she enjoys teaching others how to make things. At her Sartell home, she holds regular artsand-crafts classes for friends' children, usually about six kids at a time. One time, they all painted "happy rocks" they then hid in their neighborhoods for other children to find.

She is hoping to host more fun arts-and-crafts learning sessions for more children.

"I've always been a crafter," she said. "When I was a teen I would love to retreat to my room, my alone time, to work on arts and crafts. My father did macramé weaving so I might have gotten my love of crafting from him."

Catrice and her husband, Thomas Etienne, have a 15-year-old son. Thomas is a human-resources worker and vice president for Brutger Equities.

Etienne showcases her crafts and other manifestations of her sense of fun on her Facebook page, dubbed "Catrice's Side Gig."

She recommends people visit that site to see if they would like to join her classes. She expects to host learning sessions for adults as well as children.

New Sartell business is family affair

news@thenewsleaders.com

When Kenzie DeSmet says her newly opened business in Sartell is a family affair, she's not kidding. Not at all.

She works there; husband Brandon works there; their three children spend the day there (Sophia, 2; Kayden, 1; Paisley, 4 months), and their soon-to-be step-grandmother Sheri (who is engaged to Brandon's father) hangs around there to help watch over the children.

The DeSmet family lives in St. Joseph.

Kenzie is the creator/owner of KD Customs LLC, located at 331 Fourth Ave. S. in Sartell. The shop specializes in customized creations such as laser-engraved items, wedding invitations, wedding-party favors, custom apparel and virtually any items that customers want with a personalized touch.

For two years, partly because of the virus pandemic, KD Customs was an at-home business in the DeSmets' house in St. Joseph. In Sartell, the new shop opened just this week.

Brandon also owns his own auto-detailing business and has worked for dealerships in Avon and St. Cloud.

Born and raised in Mora, Kenzie moved to St. Cloud some years ago and studied marketing and psychology at St. Cloud State University. She is now only six credits shy of graduating with a bachelor's degree.

There are actually two types of businesses in the new shop in Sartell, DeSmet noted. In the front is a women's clothing boutique and in the back is the custom shop that boasts a laser engraver that can engrave words, images and designs onto glass or stone. It can even engrave images from photographs into - say, marble or granite, for example.

"We customize each item based on personalized requests from each customer," Kenzie said. "We have thousands of designs available to print on shirts or whatever. This work is really fun. I used to do this as a hobby, but in just a few months I became aware of how popular it is and how needed by people. And it just took off from there."

DeSmet makes a lot of items for wedding vendors in the area and works to fill the needs of many grooms and brides with unique wedding invitations and party favors.

KD Customs will also try to meet the needs of people who walk into the shop looking for something unique and special for them or loved ones.

The shop will be open starting at 10 a.m. Monday through Saturday and will be closed most Sundays. The daily closing times have yet to be determined.

HOLIDAY GIFT GUIDE | MUSICIANS

Gifts For Music Lovers

This holiday season, many people are faced with the difficult decision of what gifts to purchase for their friends and family. Music lovers can be especially difficult to shop for because of their different tastes and ways they enjoy music.

Whether they are die-hard Eminem fans, musical theater geeks, classical music enthusiasts, musicians themselves or simply enjoy listening to the occasional rock song, music fans are everywhere.

Depending on the person, shopping for presents music enthusiasts will enjoy can be as easy as buying a band T-shirt or it can be as difficult as trying to figure out where the nearest vinyl records store is located. It is important to know the person you're shopping for, but there are several go-to gifts if you are unsure of where to start.

RECORDINGS

CDs, records or music streaming gift cards are all options available to give as gifts for music lovers this holiday season. It is highly suggested to get CDs or records of bands the music fan already is interested in, but if you aren't sure of what albums they already have or what specific bands they enjoy, it is still heartwarming to hand them a CD of songs that made you think of your friend. It goes to show you know that per-son well.

Of course, there is the option of hand-picking what songs to put on a CD and burn your own personalized list of songs for that special music lover in your life. Adding a touch of personalization goes a long way when it comes to gifts.

Vinyl records are another option. According to the Recording Industry Association of America, more than 17 million vinyl records were sold in the first six months of 2021, practically doubling that which was sold during the same time-period in 2020. Vinyl records are coming back in style, and more than likely, the music lovers in your life would be happy to tell you more about it.

LISTENING

Many people listen to music through headphones or earbuds, so buying nice music accessories is a great way to improve a music lover's lifestyle. Bluetooth speakers, sound bars, karaoke machines and outdoor music options will allow enthusiasts to share their love of music with others.

LIVE SHOWS

Concert tickets are a great gift for any music lover, and the good news is there are concerts taking place constantly for all different kinds of music. Make sure to buy tickets for a concert far in the future so the person you are giving them to will have time to put that concert on their schedule.

Music lovers who play an instrument might enjoy being given fun instrument accessories. These accessories can be both a funny and endearing way to show you care about that person. For example, there are flavored reeds for woodwind instruments like saxophone and clarinet. Buying sheet music of a musician's favorite songs also is a good option for when that musician just wants to relax and have fun with their instrument.

It is always best to ask music lovers how they like to enjoy music. Do they love a certain genre or do they like many different types of music? Do they play an instrument themselves or do they just appreciate listening to it?

The more you know about this person's musical hobbies, the more comfortable you will be when picking out that perfect gift this holiday season.

Opinion-

Our View

Small businesses over Amazon

No one wants to fight the crowds in malls and large department stores this time of year. It brings bouts of stress and anxiety and leaves one feeling depressed about holiday shopping in general.

That's why things like online shopping and Amazon have become such wildly used alternatives to pushing your way through elbow-to-elbow people who generally have a chip on their shoulder and are less than pleasant to be around.

However, now is the time we should be focusing our attention toward supporting our own little small businesses right here in our communities. These businesses are often the legs our cities and towns stand on and they need our support to keep moving forward.

It's no surprise to anyone the pandemic has really taken its toll on our small business neighbors. It's sad to see how many of them have slipped through the cracks and disappeared without warning. What's really sad is most of these small businesses were selling quality products you can't get anywhere else.

While malls are filled with crowds of people pushing and shoving their way past you to get the best deals, if you shop at a local store, you are generally met with a friendly, inviting atmosphere where the owners and employees are thrilled to see you. They understand the value of having you as a customer and appreciate the time you take to shop their stores. The same cannot necessarily be said about what you purchase on Amazon; it's hard to really know who your money is actually going to and what you are supporting.

Shopping at your local family-owned stores might not guarantee you small crowds and cheaper prices, but if you've spent time in one of these shops you will notice a difference. Even if there are crowds of people, the atmosphere is different. That's because everyone there knows they are doing more than checking off an item on their shopping lists, they are proud to be purchasing unique items for their family and friends while also giving back to their community.

It might be easier to sit behind a computer and push, "add to cart." And truthfully, there are other benefits to doing that because we do need to support our economy as whole. But starting with our own towns first ensures we are supporting families who live in our very own neighborhoods.

The pandemic has taken so much away from all of us, it's our job to start rebuilding what has been lost. And there's no reason that can't start with supporting our local small businesses.

When keeping yourself safe feels unkind

I was sitting at my home office, taking a work call when I saw a woman walking down the road in front of my house. The wind was cruel and unrelenting, but the woman was wearing nothing but a skintight dress that stopped above the knees, and flip flops. Her skin was a painful red and she was clutching some type of bag closely to her chest. It appeared she was making her way toward my house when she suddenly turned and chose to knock on the door of my neighbor's house, directly across the street from me.

My neighbor allowed her in and for a moment I felt better she was going to get the warmth she so badly needed. I continued my work call. By the time I was finished I noticed there was a cop car in my neighbor's driveway.

"Good" I thought, "she will get the help she needs."

I left the house shortly after that feeling appeased the situation was being worked out, and knowing my neighbor, she was being well cared for.

Roughly an hour-and-a-half later, I returned to my house. I was surprised to see the situation had not yet been solved. In fact, there were two more cop cars and three cops in my neighbor's driveway speaking with a now more warmly dressed woman. As I said, my neighbor had taken care of her. But there still seemed to be some sort of trouble

Not wanting to be a nosey neighbor, and of course letting law enforcement do their job, I returned to my desk and began working while having my lunch.

Leanne Loy Editor

Moments later, out of the corner of my eye. I saw movement and my beagles began to howl. As I looked up, I saw that the woman was now standing in my front yard. It appeared she was attempting to play tag with the officers. My concern for the woman now became concern for myself.

I locked the doors and closed the curtains. A little overkill maybe, but I needed to feel safe. It became quiet so I looked out my window just in time to see the three officers "needing to use force" getting the woman in the back of one of their cars.

Why am I sharing this story? Well, because I learned a sad, but necessary lesson that day.

When I initially saw this woman walking in the screaming cold, alone and hunched over a bag (which I later found out was filled with anxiety medication), my first instinct was to open my door to her. I wanted to help. I thought perhaps she was running from someone who had hurt her or was trying to hurt her. Or maybe she had a bit too much to drink the night before and was just completely lost. I'm sure that's happened to the best of us. After speaking to my neighbor, I discovered the same thoughts had run through her head as well, until it became apparent that much more was involved.

Moments upon entry into my neighbor's house, it was clear this woman was suffering from some serious mental health issues. Luckily my neighbor was unhurt, and the cops' arrival ensured all would be well. They were able to get her to the hospital for the help she needs. But it could have had a scarier ending.

As someone who has not only taken several self-defense classes but has also taught them, I know better than to let strangers into my house. And yet, here was this woman, so helpless and cold that my first instinct was to let her in. I think as women a lot of us have this natural instinct to want to help other women. That's not a bad thing, it's part of what makes us human. But the sad reality is we live in a world now where we really do need to think about our own protection first, which is something that doesn't come naturally for a lot of us

The safe thing would have been to hand her a blanket and let her know help was on the way. She may have tried to leave at that point, but as she was on foot she wouldn't have gotten too far.

It makes me sad to think we cannot just open our doors anymore to help our fellow humans. But that doesn't mean we cannot help in some way. This poor woman clearly needed to encounter kindness, but what she needed even more was the kind of help only professionals can provide.

Santa arrives with big bag of projects

Santa Claus arrived early, bringing a big bag bursting at the seams with $1.2 trillion-worth of jobs-boosting infrastructure projects.

On the lawn of the White House, Santa (aka President Joe Biden) joined with others to celebrate passage of the "Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act." It was a historic moment – the biggest, most comprehensive infrastructure package in decades. Like ObamaCare, it's a big deal. Let's rejoice.

My only concern is that greedy, corrupt factions might hog some of the funding for boondoggle schemes. Strict oversight, transparency and accountability are crucial when that many billions of federal funds are involved.

President Biden delivered. So unlike the former president who crowed so often about infrastructure needs and did nothing about them. Like House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, Biden knows how to "herd cats." He is a master in communicating with contentious legislative factions and in achieving deals through major compromises. In this bill, Biden got about half of what he wanted, but a half a loaf (especially in this case) is better than none.

As I watched the signing ceremony on TV, three thoughts sprang to mind: the horrific Aug. 1, 2007 collapse of the I-35 bridge in Minneapolis, killing 13 motorists during rush hour; the lead water pipes in Flint, Michigan that were poisoning people and stunting children's minds; and the many thousands of deep potholes I've had to swerve to avoid driving over throughout the years.

The bill was passed in the House on a vote of 228-206, with help from 13 Republican votes. Six Democrats voted against it. Earlier, the Senate had approved it 69-30, with 19 Republican senators voting yes. Some of them have since reported receiving death threats. None of Minnesota's Republicans voted for the bill; just wait, just watch them try to take credit when wonderful projects strengthen our state.

Minnesota is supposed to receive about $4.5 billion for highways, bridge repairs and replacements, broadband Internet extensions, water-treatment facilities, electrical charging stations for vehicles, and airport improvements – to name just some. The projects and priorities will be determined by the Minnesota Department of Transportation, along with lots of input from residents, local officials and state legislators.

Nationwide, there will be projects like the ones in Minnesota, but also rebuilding electrical grids, expansion of renewable energy sources, environmental mitigation, replacing of lead drinking-water pipes, kick-start projects for electric-vehicle production, and public transit and improvements at sea ports and airports. There are also funds to reconnect communities, mainly predominantly Black communities that had been isolated and/or divided by highway and other infrastructure projects of the past – examples of systemic racism.

This bill is nothing short of a massive rebuilding of America's structure that will greatly enhance our country and its people.

Suzanne Clark, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, lavishly praised the bill for all of its projects that will, she said, grow the economy and help the environment.

"It is," she said, "the single largest investment in innovation, efficiency and resiliency to address climate change in U.S. history."

At the White House ceremony, Biden said this: "Here in Washington, we've heard countless speeches and promises, white papers from experts, but today we're finally getting this done. So my message to the American people is this: America's moving again, and your life is going to change for the better."

Thank you, Santa – um – I mean Mr. President.

'Faith Feeds' serves 1,000 free T-Day dinners

by Dennis Dalman

news@thenewsleaders.com

Thanks to generous contributions and lots of volunteers, the "Faith Feeds" program, based in St. Joseph, cooked more than 1,000 Thanksgiving dinners to serve to people in the area on Thanksgiving Day.

The Faith Feeds program began almost three years ago when Ben Prigge of St. Joseph participated in a Bible study program. He asked himself, "What are we doing as a family for Jesus?" After a bit of pondering, he made a decision. He, his wife and three children could cook Easter dinners for families and individuals in need. They cooked 85 dinners. That Easter, in 2020, they and volunteers provided 585 meals.

Prigge has degrees in cooking and technical engineering from St. Cloud Technical College. Elizabeth, his wife, is a chemical-dependency counselor for Nystrom & Associates in Sartell. They have three young children (James, Jaxon, Megan), and the entire family is active in the Solid Rock Family Church in Sartell.

The Faith Feeds program greatly expanded this year because so many people and businesses decided to lend a hand - thus making possible the 1,000-plus dinners. In addition, bags of groceries were given to people dealing with hunger insecurity.

The local radio station, Spirit 92.2, decided to do an on-air fundraising program for Faith Feeds, and listeners donated a total of $4,000. Then the station's business partners matched that amount, for a total of $8,000. In addition, the station gave another $11,000 to Place of Hope Ministries in St. Cloud.

Liz and Ben Prigge work in tandem filling dozens upon dozens of styrofoam containers with mashed potatoes Nov. 23 in the St. Joseph Church kitchen and dining room.

Other contributions rushed in: donated desserts from Christina's Cheesecake in Waite Park, nearly 100 loaves of bread from Backwards Bakery in St. Cloud, turkeys and other food items from Sam's Club of St. Cloud, a huge discount by Penske Truck Rental for a refrigerated truck, and monetary donations from Deerwood Bank (St. Joseph and Sartell), the ECIC Co. and the Braas Co., both in the Twin Cities. There were also many anonymous donations given.

The Catholic Church of St. Joseph opened its large kitchen so volunteers could prepare the many turkey dinners with all the fixings and desserts. The process took two days of prep work. There were two pick-up sites (St. Joseph, Sartell) to receive the dinners, but for shutins or people lacking vehicles, the meals were delivered to their doorsteps.

Prigge recalled one moving telephone call he received. A woman asked him what were the criteria to receive a free dinner. He told her the meals are free to anyone who wants one, period. The woman broke down crying and said it would be the first Thanksgiving meal she and her young son will have had in seven years because they had been on the move almost constantly, doing without and barely scraping by.

Prigge said he hopes to make Faith Feeds a nonprofit agency some day.

When asked how he can manage to lead such a complicated effort to feed so many, Prigge said this:

"My amazing wife helps me stay coordinated."

Then he added with a laugh: "Oh – and not to forget – my skill and finesse."

Emergency-Proof Your Finances

The best way to protect your finances in times of trouble is through pre-planning.

Disasters, whether in the form of storms, family crises or a larger economic issue, tend to arrive without warning. Making the right choices before there's an emergency can limit disruptions, help lower stress and give you a smoother pathway forward. Here are some planning strategies to help emergency-proof your checkbook.

CREATE AN EMERGENCY FUND

Economies, by nature, are prone to booms and busts. Unfortunately, they will always be subject to downturns. We also can be impacted by sudden outside forces, like the banking crisis of 2008 or the pandemic of 2020. An important protection against financial hardship involves saving money to help bridge these cycles. The total amount varies depending on your costs, but a good rule of thumb for emergency funds is three to six months worth of expenses.

EVALUATE YOUR FINANCES

Pay close attention to your general savings, investments, income and debt. These financial markers can make all of the difference in navigating through a sudden problem. If you feel like there's room for improvement, create a budget that takes into account how much you're making against what you are paying out through bills.

Find places to cut costs before it's a requirement, and those choices become more easily made.

ORGANIZE YOUR DOCUMENTS

The impact of a natural disaster or family emergency can be unbearable;

it gets worse still if disorganization creates new stress points as you try to move on. Organize important documents now, so you know just where to find them. Consider putting documents that are more difficult to replace — along with collectibles and other heirlooms — in a safety-deposit box. Keep things like passports and living wills with you, since you might not have immediate access to the deposit box.

IMPROVE YOUR CREDIT SCORE

Lenders always favor the healthiest borrowers, and that's particularly true during difficult times. The higher your credit score, the better rates and terms you'll earn. If you can't establish the recommended three- to sixmonth emergency fund, or if the fund simply runs out during your emergency, you might need access to credit until you can emerge from an uncertain period.

REVIEW YOUR INSURANCE

An essential part of any emergency planning, insurance coverage can create an umbrella of protection against difficult financial situations. If you don't have the right kind or amount, however, insurance can just as easily become another issue as you try to right your financial ship. Look into plans that will be of specific help during an emergency, like disability insurance to help replace lost income.
